A SCHOOL PANIC AVERTED.

MISS MURRAY'S COOLNESS AFTER MR. VAN COTT'S MISTAKE.

A Music Tencher Got a Fit in the Hall and the Vice-Principal in His Excitement Rang Up the Pire Engines as Well as an Ambulance-Blue Murray Met the Pirem at the Door and Sent Them Away.

Coolness and presence of mind on the part of Miss Anna A. Murray, Principal of the Primary Department of Grammar School No. 26, in West Thirtieth street, averted what might have resulted in serious panic and loss of life among the school children this morn-

Charles Ferrero, the special music teacher of the school, had just finished giving his instructions and was on his way downstairs about 10.80 o'clock, when he was taken with an epileptic fit on the second landing.

A colored lad coming in a few moments later found him lying there, and going to one of the assistant lady teachers on that floor ported that there was a dead man out in the hallway.

The fact was immediately reported to Vice-Principal Van Cott, who was on the top floor, and who immediately hurried down stairs, followed by Mr. Rice, one of his as

He recognized Mr. Ferrero, and his first impulse was to send out an ambulance call from the special box, which is located in the pol-house. In the excitement of the moment, however, he failed to observe the instructions in the box and sent out both fire and ambulance calls at once, Less than two minutes afterwards Engine

No. 1 came up at full speed, followed in No. 1 came up at full speed, followed in quick succession by Engines 26 and 19 and Hook and Ladder No. 7. The firemen were all prepared for desperate work, knowing what a fire panic in a school-hcuse is, and began at once to run out hose, while squeral of them made a rush for the door.

They were met in the hallway by Miss Murray, who had left her schoolroom when the excitement began, and who begged them not to come into the building and to make as little noise as possible for fear of frightening the children.

In a few words she had explained the cause little noise as possible for fear of frightening the children.

In a few words she had explained the cause of the trouble and the false alarm, and Chief Gicquel ordered the various companies to go back to their quarters as quietly as possible.

Meanwhile not a child in the whole school, which numbers over fourteen hundred pupils, knew anything of the disturbance. Only one or two of the teachers were aware of what had taken place, and not a single class recitation was interrupted.

The two ambulances, one from the New York Hospital and one from Bellevue, which had responded to the call, were sent back, because Mr. Ferrero, who had been carried to the Principal's room, had come out of his fit and was unwilling to go the hospital, say, ing that he would be able to go home as soon as had been given a little time to rest.

Chief Gicquel was loud in his praises of Miss Murray's conduct, and declared that nothing could have better shown her pluck and courage or her ability as a disciplinarian, while Miss Murray herself modestly disclaimed any special credit for her timely interference.

exactly how it worked.

"Fortunately I found the key, and read-ing over the directions hurriedly pulled the slot, after fixing the pointer at the word "Ambulance," as the instructions directed. "I didn't see, however, that it said I must hold the pointer at that word while the slot went back, but let go at the same time I did the button.

"The result was that the first thing I knew we had five or six fire-engines around here, as well as ambulances.

"It is very fortunate that the matter was kept from the children, for there is no telling what might have happened."

All Who Can Catch a Ball Want to Play for "The Evening World." If THE EVENING WORLD wanted to organize a league of its own, instead of one baseball nine, it could do so out of the newsboys who have applied for a chance to assist in wiping out the Detroit Journal. Under these circumstances many ambitious players will have to be disappointed; but players will have to be disappointed; but those applicants who are not at first chosen need not consider themselves out of the field. The management proposes to put into the diamond the very strongest team procurable, and to this end several changes may be made in the nine first selected.

The Brooklyn Baseball Association, through President Byrne, has placed Washington Park at the disposal of The World boys for their practising and their games, and there is reason to believe that President Day, of New York, will extend the courtesies of the Polo Grounds.

Manager Higgins is confident that the newsboy championship will come to Brooklyn, and with such eager organizations at each end of the big bridge it will be strange indeed if Detroit is allowed to carry the honors away from this vicinity.

One of the latest applicants for glory with The Evening World team recognizes, in his "hoping that The World will come out on top as it always does," the fact that the paper is in regular baseball earnest.

No applications for positions will be received after to-morrow. On Thursday morning notices will be mailed to the applicants with whom the management wishes personal interviews.

UNION PACIFIC REPORT.

An Increase in Earnings and a Decrease in

[SPECIAL TO THE WORLD.] Boston, April 24.—The annual report of the directors of the Union Pacific Railway Company was submitted to the stockholders to-day. Of the result of the Pacific railway to-day. Of the result of the Pacine railway investigation they say:

The measure reported by the Commissioners was wholly the result of their own labors and investigations. Indeed, had the officer of the company been permitted a hearing in the matter, as is customary where private parties alone are involved, the measure recommended would not improbably have been of a quite officerent character.

The lease of the Oregon Railway and Navi-gation Company is defended, and the report says on the subject of branch and leased lines:

An examination of the several returns of these lines, herewith submitted, will show that a number of them failed during the past year to earn their operating expenses and fixed charges, reporting an apparent deficit. Yer, with the possible exception of the benver, South Park and Pacific, there was probably no one of them the traffic of which over the main lines of your company did not return to it a profit in excess, and often largely so, of any deficit which had to be mer. The value of this branch line traffic to the main line, irrespective or all branch line earnings, has in the case of the Union Pacific been recently estimated by the Compitoller, as the result of careful investigation, at not less than $5,000,000 a year.

MRS, BARBARA DALTON'S MACHINE

Taken Away from Her for Missing a Payment While Her Husband Was Ill.

Mrs. Barbara Dalton bought a sixty-dollar sewing-machine from the Domestic Company and was to pay for it at the rate of $3 a week When she had paid $15 her husband fell ill and she had no money, but she promised to have the instalment ready the next week if he would wait. The agent said he would consult the company and let her know.

The next she heard from him was when a wagon drove up to her home with a city marshal and three assistants who forcibly took the machine away.

The matter came up in Civil Justice Deane's Court on the question whether the company was bound by the promise of the agent to report to Mrs. Dalton the result of her request for more time.

Mr. Kinghorn, the company's lawyer, argued that the defendant's rights were defined in the written instrument which she had signed for the machine, and that no act had signed for the machine, and that no act of the agent could change that contract.

The case was evidently a hard one, for the defendant and Justice Deane advised a settlement if possible, for the reason that the husband, who was sick and unemployed when the machine was taken, had since secured work and promised to pay the balance due on the machine. The Judge suggested that the company store the machine and give defendant an opportunity to redeem it, allowing her for what was paid.

The company's attorney was somewhat inclined to agree to the propositior.
